

Cambo Country House & Estate Green Policy

So many people tell us Cambo is a special, 'magical' place. The Cambo Estate has been the home of the Erskine Family since 1668, and is also home to a wider community of people, including tenants and employees. Today the estate is still a home, but also welcomes visitors both locally and from much further afield, offering a unique venue, an afternoon's relaxation, or a longer stay in beautiful surroundings.

We strive to be responsible stewards of this extraordinary location, making thoughtful and creative decisions that will benefit the lives of this community, both on and beyond the estate, for generations to come, while challenging and reshaping the traditional approaches to land ownership and management.

We aim to keep sustainability at the heart of all our projects, new and old, and use the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals as our guide. The estate is working closely with the local community of Kingsbarns with the ambition of reaching net zero ahead of the national ambition for Scotland of 2045.

Our Guiding Principles

- ★ Community – We are more than the sum of our parts. We nurture the living heritage of the estate by encouraging strong relationships between people and place to help build an active, supportive community.
- ★ Opportunity – We aim to fulfil the traditional role of stately homes to act as an anchor for a local and global community. We feel the opportunities afforded by the estate should be shared by all those who enjoy, care for, and contribute to the life of the estate.
- ★ Sustainability – We aim to keep sustainability at the heart of all projects, new and old. We use the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals as our guide.
- ★ Aesthetics – We acknowledge our role as stewards of a place of heritage.
- ★ Fun – If it's not fun, it isn't sustainable!

In order to achieve these objectives we are committed to the following actions. We will:

- Offer opportunities to enhance wellbeing.
- Seek to provide equal opportunities to everyone and comply with all relevant legislation.
- Comply with all relevant environmental regulations and legislation.
- Reduce our consumption of resources including energy, water and other raw materials, and maximise the efficiency of any resources we do consume.
- Consider the environmental, social and ethical impacts of the goods and services we buy.
- Work with suppliers to reduce the impact of our supply chain.
- Regularly review and take action on the impact of our business activities on the environment, local community and wider society as part of a programme of continuous improvement.
